Surplus (Terrapin Trader)

Terrapin Trader is the University’s surplus redistribution operation that plays a major role in the reuse, redistribution, and recycling of used office furniture, lab equipment, and electronics. Through a variety of different programs, Terrapin Trader has been responsible for preventing a wide array of material from entering local landfills. Terrapin Trader, which is open to students, staff, faculty, and the general public, sells products, accepts bids on products, and also hosts auctions. In addition to their current clientele, Terrapin Trader hopes to reach out to other institutions in the University System of Maryland in order to establish a more thorough surplus redistribution program.

For more information, please visit: http://www.purchase.umd.edu/ttrader/